

Desolate Fens

Desolate Fens. No detail maps for this area.

The Desolate Fens. Small ruins and towers to help defend them. Only village left has a wooden palisade around it. These folk gather peat, dry it, and then sell to nearby villages, towers, and castles as winter fuel for cooking and heating.

Late at night, especially when there is no moon, travelers near the fens can hear howls in the distance, or the wind whispers tales of death and horror.

The last village doesn't show lights at night. The others did, and they were attacked and are no more.

Tales of coins and various magical items abound about the ruined towers. Those who go there to look, never come back.