

Kilikeil Region

This little inhabited region is dominated by the forest where Herr Isdril has a small lumber mill. In the western end is a rocky outcrop dominated by an old Henge, named after the hero Hans Ostaadt, who reputedly rescued his true love, Ilyana, from a grisly death at the bloody hands of the now extinct order of Blood Druids.

But to the north, is the Kilikeil Ruins, once a thriving town, destroyed by marauding ogres, the not yet forgotten Koskrovers, under the leadership of Bors the Brute. Many undead are said to lie in wait for revenge for their murderers. Hint: don't disguise yourself as an ogre!

The mainstay of civilization in the region is Lauskohl farm, whose patriarch, Norbert, keeps a small army of relatives at the ready for any unwanted incursions on his territory.

And Herr Lauskohl's main fear is his elder brother, Freidhard, now a hermit. Freidhard was a powerful mage, but was envied by his brother, who lamed him, then cut out his tongue so he could no longer utter spells. Petrov has taken up residence in a small hilly outcrop, and is in secret alliance with the Koskrover Ogres, to destroy his brother and all his family in an act of grim and deadly revenge.