in other words, multi-color fungi.

3) store room. Not much here. The books are eaten by insects. The two chests might contain vestments worth a bit of silver. The shelf right behind the curtain is empty.

4) just before 4 is a pit that drops the incantious down into the muddy pool.

5) Where the old gent who replaces the torches lives. He is the last acolyete for this temple. The bones of the parihoners are in room 30 below. He has a few things, maybe worth a few copper pieces. When he dies, the torches will go out, and nothing will be left.
