

The Scar is not just volcanic anomaly, but is a tear in the fabric of the land that reaches through the ether into the inner planes of dread. It is a place dominated by negative energies and inhabited by those beings attracted to such an environment.

The lands surrounding The Scar are gentler and inhabited by a variety of hardy folk. The closer they live to the scar, the more suspicious they are of strangers and the more likely they are to mount a night watch to guard against the creatures that might wander from The Scar.